December 2005 Tip of the Month

“Holiday Greetings!”

The holidays are always a special time for us at Cameron-Brooks when we count our many blessings. As we reflect on 2005, we are filled with sincere appreciation for the many people with whom we are proud to be associated - our client companies and recruiters, our active military officer candidates and our alumni. We recognize and appreciate your role in the success of Cameron-Brooks.

We are especially thankful for the American military men and women who stand in harm's way to spread democracy and freedom across the world. We join Americans across the country to pray for the military families who suffer the loss of loved ones. We honor the memory of every fallen soldier and keep them and their families in our hearts this holiday season.

The Gulf Coast hurricanes and heated debates regarding the War on Terrorism made 2005 a challenging year. It is only natural that the negative discord clouds the country with feelings of pessimism and division. The holiday season gives us a chance to remember that as Americans, we have so many things for which to be thankful. We have an honorable and selfless military, a country with bountiful resources, a growing economy, the best scientists and healthcare providers in the world, a ubiquitous rule of law, stable capital markets and free enterprise, and the liberty to live our lives free from fear. The holidays afford us an opportunity to appreciate the good things that are a part of being Americans - our friendships and loved ones, patriotic traditions, beautiful sunsets, bustling cities, our quality of life, the American spirit, and the unstoppable force of human freedom. Regardless of the heated debates, our shared American idealism unites the country around freedom's cause and gives us the strength to lay the foundations of peace for future generations.

May the American dream, the closeness of loved ones, and the joy of the season bring you hope and renewed spirits this holiday. May you gather with family, neighbors and friends to rekindle old friendships, enjoy honored traditions and renew the hope and love that are so much a part of this season.

With joyful wishes to you during this Holiday Season and throughout the New Year,

The Cameron-Brooks Team
